City Council Rejects Bus Subsidy Plan; Proposes New Plan of Its Own

The Seaside City Council, at its last meeting, rejected a proposed plan to subsidize the Bay Rapid Transit Company and passed a proposal of its own, which would substantially reduce the city's contribution.

Earlier this month, city managers and a representative of the county decided on a plan under which each community and the county would contribute proportionate shares to make up the $3,000 a month, which bus company president Randall Ward says will be necessary until a transit district can be formed. Without the money, Ward says, there will be no bus service on the Peninsula after September 1.

The proposed plan was already approved by city councils in Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel.

However, after city manager Dudley Lapham said the formula was unfair because it was based on gross population and not the population serviced, the Seaside council rejected the plan.

According to Lapham, the Fort Ord area of Seaside is not served and therefore should not be counted. He said the same is true of the La Mesa Village Navy housing in Monterey.

He then proposed a new plan under which Seaside's share would be reduced from $1,149 to $864. Under this plan, Monterey's share would increase from $834 to $882; Carmel, from $147 to $192; Pacific Grove, from $429 to $561. Del Rey Oaks, which under the consensus proposal would have to pay $57, has been eliminated in the Seaside plan because it is not served by the bus line.

Councilmen Glenn Olea moved that the city's contribution be set at $864 and that it be for no more than four months.

Stephen Ross then amended the motion to make it a condition that the bus company carry "handicpped" persons, whether or not they have the exact fare, until they can get change! It has been a policy of the company that the drivers carry no change and therefore passengers must have the exact fare in order to ride.

Ward explained to the council that that action was taken to reduce possibility of robbery of the drivers. He said that almost every major city in the country has done this.

Despite Ward's explanation, the council passed the motion unanimously.

Ward said, after the meeting, that because Seaside would not go along with the other peninsula cities, it's possible that there will be no bus transportation on the peninsula after September 1.

Mayor B.J. Dolan explained the city's position when he said, "We're a very poor city. I don't care how we're criticized on this. They're trying to make the poorest people in the county pay the lion's share.

In other action, Dolan appointed Ross and himself to an "official complaint and grievence committee" for the city.

All complaints regarding any part of the city's operations should be referred by citizens to the committee.

The countil approved a final budget for 1972-73 of $2,708,190. Although the budget is $410,000 higher than last year, the city tax rate will remain at $1.95 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The council also approved an allocation of $1,500 for the Harambe Free Medical Clinic; referred to the planning commission an application of Young Adults For Action for a variance to establish a small iron fabrication business employing between 5 and 10 persons; reappointed Mary Ann Boyles and Royal Manaka to the parks and recreation commission and named Regina Battle to replace Melbra Watts who resigned, on the commission; and continued until September 7 a hearing on the establishment of a plan line on Hilby Street.

Smith, county supervisor. Committee headquarters is located at 1484 Fremont Street, Seaside. Any volunteers are welcome.

School Board Pledges Intergration

Monterey Peninsula Unified School District trustees have pledged themselves to doing away with racial inbalance in the schools, and have ordered a preliminary study aimed at gathering facts and figures, detailing alternative methods and educational programs that might accompany such a move, and costs involved.

The action was taken August 14 following on hour-long public dicussion of the question.

The preliminary study will be accomplished by district staff members, but the board agreed to name a small "Superintendent's Advisory Committee" made up of representatives of key community organizations to react, review and offer community resources.

Although the board indicated it is firmly committed to integrating the schools, trustees made no specific commitments as to a method of integration or a date by which integration should be achieved. Several board members made it clear, however, that they view integration as more than moving bodies from one school to another.

In his opening remarks, Supt. Allan J. Peterdorf told the board that school districts that have rushed into desegregation plans have often met with disaster, and suggested that a successful plan might take up to five years, including at least one year of advance preparation among school employees and members of the community. He indicated that the preliminary study could be completed by February, 1973, but the board established no formal time limit.

The Superintendent also noted that State Law requires the State Board of Education to develop guidelines for integration, but that those guidelines may not be immediately forthcoming. The State Board is scheduled to take the matter up in September.

Among those who spoke at the meeting was Eloise Andrus, representing the Peninsula's League of Women Voters Organization. She commended the school district for showing "Leadership" in improving educational opportunities for minorities and urged the board to continue to investigate all alternatives for balancing ethnic distribution in schools and providing equal opportunities for all. She said the League believes wide community participation is necessary in any integration plan, and urged the board to appoint a citizens committee to "Review the Situation."

Celcil Bindel, president of the local NAACP, spoke in favor of integrating, and offered the help of his organization.

Sam Karas, of Monterey, chided the board of seeking "Alternatives," and told trustees they must consider integration as a social problem, not an educational problem.

The board also heard from local resident Tony Sison, who said he is against busing to integrate elementary schools. Sison suggested that neighborhood schools be retained at the elementary level, and that all students be required to attend a single junior high school and senior high school as a means of achieving integration at that level.

Trustees spoke in turn about their feelings toward integration.

Dr. Robert Black said he is "turned off" by the "numbers game," and insisted that emphasis be placed on what will happen to children moved from one school to another either via bus or because of a boundary change. He also noted that any major integration plan would fail without broad community participation.

Ted Cunningham remarked that housing patterns are at the root of segregation problems and said that neighborhood schools "may have been good in dad's day, but dads not going to school now."

G. Gervaise Davis, 111 suggested that the neighboring districts of Carmel and Pacific Grove be somehow involved, saying that integration is a total Peninsula problem. He suggested that a large citizens committee would be of no value at this point, but that a small advisory group made up of members of organizations such as the League of Women Voters and the NAACP could be of help during the preliminary study.

Linda Bassett suggested the district look at exchanbe programs both within the district and with neighboring districts as possible alternatives to be studied.

Lonnie Ayers said he agreed with Davis that a large citizens committee at this point would be of no help, but supported the idea of a small advisory group.

Mary Lou Stutzman lamented the fact that schools are forced to find answers to broad social problems like, racism, drug abuse and veneral disease but are not given adequate money to do the job. She agreed that other school district should be involved in Monterey's attempt to deal with school integration, commenting that she had been "terribly insulted" when the Carmel school system "imported minorities" from outside the Peninsula to take part in A Better Chance program started there last year. She asked that the Carmel and Pacific Grove boards be contacted about the possibility of a joint study session regarding integration and other matters of mutual concern.

The Rev. Thomas Knauf was on vacation and absent from the meeting.

Mrs. Stutzman, who is president of the board, said the community should know that "this board is extremely committed to doing all we can to do away with racial imbalance in the schools."

Last year, close to half of the district's elementary schools were racially imbalanced in terms of guidelines formerly used by the State. Two of the five junior high schools were out of balance. A balance has been achieved at both high schools, however.

Registration Drive Begins

More than 8,000 California Republicans--all volunteers--will turn out to welcome President Nixon back to California Thursday, August 24, with a massive registration drive.

Timed to coincide with the end of the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach and President Nixon's return to California Thursday evening, the WELCOME WALK is expected to be one of the largest single registration drives in the history of the state, according to registration chairman Gordon C. Luce.

"We want to welcome a President who has a solid record of achievements," Luce explained, "and the most tangible way we can do this is to help register more persons who will vote for him in November."

The Registration Blitz will operate from more than 70 headquarters of the Committee for the Re-election of the President in almost all the counties of California, according to Luce. Registration teams will canvass homes from about 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Almost half the volunteers are expected to be young voters under 30 years of age.

"We're very optimistic that this registration drive will be one of the most successful in the history of California," Luce said. "Many thousands of persons who watched both conventions will vote for the President, and we think many of them are also ready to register Republican. Our Welcome Walk will give them the chance to show their support for a President who has done a responsible job for the country," Luce emphasized.

Challenges Talcott and Chamacho

Dr. Stanley Monteith, candidate for Congress in the 12th Congressional District, noted the tremendous shipments of grain being sent to the Soviet Union this year on long term credits and asked why neither Mr. Talcott or Mr. Comancho had raised any opposition to this obvious subsidy of the nation which has been the primary source of war materials and food which have been sent into North Vietnam to be used to slaughter both American and South Vietnamese troops.

Dr. Monteith pointed out that the Soviet economy was having difficulty maintaining it's own status and maintaining it's tremendous economic aid to North Vietnam. He pointed out that without the subsidies from the United States, it would be difficult for the shipments to North Vietnam to be continued--shipments which are being used to prolong the war.

Get Sickle Cell Test Saturday

On Saturday, August 26, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., the Harambe Free Medical Clinic will offer Sickle Cell Anemia tests for the second time this summer.

Anyone who did not get tested for sickle cell in July should stop by the clinic for the test on Saturday. It only takes a few minutes, but it can save years of agony.

Sickle cell anemia is a serious and painful blood disease that is commonly found among Black people and in the majority of cases it leads to death before the age of 30.

One out of ten Black people carries sickle cell anemia in this country. This means there are almost 2 million carries of the disease. It is passed on from the mother and/or father to the child. It shows up as early as the first year of life in the youngster, often with swelling of hands or feet, with pneumonia or with anemia.

Annexation Request Is Withdrawn

Seaside's City Council has voted unanimously to withdraw "without prejudice" its application to annex part of Fort Ord.

Included in the area Seaside was hoping to annex is land which proponents of the Marina incorporation still hope to include in their city.

The motion, made by Stephen Ross, made withdrawal effective until the battle over incorporation of Marina is resolved. Mayor Dolan explained that the motion was out prejudice" in order to permit a possible refiling of application for annexation once the Marina incorporation issue is settled.

Presently, proponents of incorporation, including the Marina Chamber of Commerce, the Better Marina Citizens Committee and 17 city council candidates, are waiting action on a petition they filed with the superior court. They are asking for a recount of the July 18 election for incorporation which failed by 48 votes. They say that enough errors were made by precinct boards to change the results.

On August 1, Seaside filed application for annexation of 25 square miles of Fort Ord. This included the land Marina was seeking.

The Local Agencies Formation Commission (LAFCO), with whom the application was filed, then set August 22 as date for hearing on the matter. However, Fred Novinger, attorney for Marina incorporation proponents, threatened LAFCO with court action if they held a hearing prior to resolution of their petition concerning the July 18 election.

Moon Rock to Be Displayed

The Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History has received word from Congressman Burt L. Talcott that he has been successful with the museum's exhibition a moon rock collected on one of the Apollo flights.

The exhibition is scheduled for January 15 through 26, 1973.

Last Friday Evening, by invitation, I attended a Fund Raising Reception honoring Assistant Secretary of HUD, Floyd H. Hyde and Congressman and Mrs. Burt Talcott. This event was held at the residence of Mr. A.C. Shoemaker in Pebble Beach. For $25 a head, I observed as many Democrats as Republicans. I had my camera, but used it sparingly in fear of embarassing someone. It seemed to me that there were almost 1000 people there. The newscasters said much less. The house is a large one, and it was hard to move around at times. But a nice time was had by all, including myself. I met many people I probably would never have met if I had failed to attend.

The snacks were O.K., but not filling, so when I left there I stopped by the Egg Let Restaurant and enjoyed one of their omelettes. The only thing I hate about that place is that it is hard to decide which type of omelete you want.

Speaking of food, I dropped by POOR OLD JOE'S MARKET on Fremont Sunday. You knew they were open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sundays, and for less than $1 I bought enough vegetables to keep me in salads for a week. I love cucumbers anyway, so I bought 4 of the most delicious cucumbers I ever had. Then I bought 4 bell peppers, some radishes, lettuce and celery. And when I saw how fresh his tomatoes were, I went wild. All in all, I spent just un-

Atomic Energy Exhibit

Late developments in the atomic energy field will be seen at the California State Fair in Sacramento, which opens August 25 and will carry through September 13.

The Atomic Energy Commission has reserved space in Building B of the fair activities area, and plans to bring the public up to date on what's happening in the atomic world.

This will be done through photos and moving slides, and the emphasis will be on the use of atomic power for peaceful purposes, pointing up the original goal of the commission.

The exhibit will be an innovation at the state fair, and will provide the means for adding to the knowledge of the public concerning this "space age" development.

der $1, but walked away carrying two bags under my arms. It pays to shop wisely.

Right now I am frustrated. Not at you, my dear readers, but at myself. I read many books. And I have many records. I also have friends. Now does that tell you anything? It should. My records I MAY lend to a dear friend (one at a time), but my books - never. Knowing this to be a fact, I am unable to find one of my prize possessions: "The Prophet." I own most of Kahlil Gibran's works, and "The Prophet" was one of my first loves. It introduced me to Gibran. It was replaced three different times due to wear and tear. Now it is gone. Vanished. Disappeared. Some "thief-in-the-night" relieved me of my bible. I have wasted two hours of precious time looking for it.

You, out there - send it home to me. I did not give you my permission to "borrow" or "steal" my hard-back. I have on many occasions purchased books for friends who admired one of mine. And I surely would have done it for you.

But I have faith in mankind. As this person looks through her or his collection of books and they see my name on the front flap, they will return it. Won't you?

You out there, do you read Gibran? Have you also wondered why I speak of this man so much? If you wonder, then you haven't read him. Next to "The Prophet" his most touching book is "The Broken Wing." That one is the story of his love life.

He was in love with a woman (Selma), and she was in love with him, but before they could make plans for a wedding, her father, who was a devout Christian, received word that the Bishop wanted his daughter for a wife. What could he do? He gave the daughter to the Bishop. Selma loved Gibran with all her heart, and she also loved her father, and could not hurt him. She said her life was like a bird in a cage with a broken wing. Even though the door was open (The Bishop was always gone), she still could not fly into Gibran's arms. She often prayed for God to "have mercy on me and mend my broken wings."

When Selma's father first made the decision to give her to the Bishop he wept and said to Gibran: "An old man's tear is more potent than that of a young man because it is the residuum of life in his weakening body. A young man's tear is like a drop of dew on the leaf of a rose, while that of an old man is like a yellow leaf which falls with the wind at the approach of winter." One of the last things her father said to her just before he died was: "Hold my hand, my beloved. I have lived long enough, and I have enjoyed the fruits of life's seasons. I have experienced all its phases with equal intensity. I lost your mother when you were three years of age, and she left you as a precious treasure in my lap. I watched you grow, and your face reproduced your mother's features as stars reflected in a calm pool of water. Your character, intelligence, and beauty are your mother's even your manner of speaking and gestures. You have been my only consolation in this life because you were the image of your mother in every deed and word. Now, I grow old, and my only resting place is between the soft wings of death. Be comforted, my beloved daughter, because I have lived long enough to see you as a woman. Be happy because I shall live in you after my death. My departure today would be no different from my going tomorrow or the day after, for our days are perishing like the leaves of autumn. The hour of death approaches rapidly, and my soul is desirous of being united with your mother's." He said, "Let me go peacefully, my child. I have broken the bars of this cage....." Finally: "I loved you, my child, while I lived, and I shall love you when I am dead, and my soul shall always watch over you and protect you."

Well, the red light is on, I ran out of space again. Seems as if I only started. O.K., O.K.! I'll tell you about Andy next week. Right now he's so busy he doesn't have time to give you a message. Gotta go. Bye.

Mem O. Randum

by JACK SPARKS

Mem O. Randum was born many years ago in the land of Confusion. He was subjected there to many indignities, acts he felt were not befitting free men. He felt that those who did that which they did in the name of government or church or other wielder of raw power did so because they were sole possessors of arms. And they answered for their use only to the state or church or other group not answerable to the people. Mem's protests were to no avail, for it was not to be expected that an appeal to a wrongdoer for redress of grievances against himself would be forthcoming.

Mem hammered away in the press at the abuses of power he observed, but wielders of power generally do not appreciate having their abuses pointed out, and such events are usually met with some further exercise of power aimed at silencing exposure. So, Mem was put down under many pressures and was left without alternative in his native land. He emigrated to a new land and there was partially responsible for the adoption of the second amendment to the Constitution, having strongly in mind the events which forced him to leave his former abode. Mem O. Randum urges: remember the events which led to the adoption of the Bill of Rights, and don't let these rights slip away from you. 'A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'

Your Supervisor Reports

Loren Smith

The big news of the Board of Supervisors meeting on August 15th was the confirmation of the largest tax rate cut by the County of Monterey in the last thirty years.

You will recall that my prediction of several weeks ago was that there would be no tax increase this year and the possibility of a 4¢ decrease. The final computations which resulted in the whopping 41 cent lowering of the rate to $2.40 per hundred was many times greater than any anticipated change. The reasons for this happy circumstance was the tremendour increase in the County's assessed valuation due to a great amount of new construction in the County and some re-evaluation of existing properties. The total increase of 62 1/2 million dollars in assessed valuation amounts to about 10 percent of the previous total County valuation.

Some of the accusations that are being made by people who should have a better understanding of the facts are misleading. The statement has been made that the Supervisors simply raised the assessed valuations in order to lower the tax rate. The people who make such statements should know that the Assessor's office is under control of an elected official who is independent of any control by the Supervisors. It is the Assessor's responsibility to properly keep the assessment rolls current as required by State law, The Board's responsibility is to determine the necessary expenditures to maintain adequate County services. When these two amounts are determined (one by the Assessor-the other by the Board) the County Auditor divides the assessed valuation by the amount of the budget.

The resulting sum is the new tax rate...simple arithmatic and no political juggling is involved.

Questions and Answers

Q -- I was honorably discharged from the Army after serving four years, part of it in Vietnam. Can I get a G.I. home loan and go to school under the G.I. Bill at the same time?

A -- Yes, you may take advantage of both of these VA benefits at the same time.

Q -- Does the VA pay dividends on "RH" life insurance, and what interest rate is paid on National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) dividends left with the VA as credit?

A -- The answer to the first part of your question is "no." Effective the first of this year, the interest rate on NSLI dividends held as credit with the VA was increased from 4 1/4 to 4 1/2 percent.

Q -- I received a VA pension check made out to my husband who died last month. Shall I return it, and if I do will the VA reissue the check to me?

A -- Yes, you must return the check. If you are eligible for a widow's pension, your first check from VA will be issued at your husband's rate of payment, if his rate was greater than yours. Thereafter you will receive checks at widow pension rates.

Q -- As the widow of a World War I veteran drawing a VA pension, can I also receive Social Security benefits?

A -- Yes, so long as you do not exceed income limitations.

Q -- I'm going to college under the G.I. Bill and having trouble with one of my courses. Is it true that the VA provides tutorial assistance in such cases?

A -- Yes. The VA will pay up to $50 monthly in tutorial fees for a maximum of nine months to prevent a veteran studying above high school level from failing in a subject essential to his educational objective. If you need this assistance, get an application form from your nearest VA office, complete it, and mail it to the VA office which has your educational records.

Q -- A few years ago, I was receiving compensation from the VA based on the death of my husband who was killed furing World War II. These payments were discontinued when I remarried. Since my second husband died recently, I am wondering if the VA compensation can be reinstated.

A -- Yes. There is a law which allows reinstatement of this benefit if the remarriage of the veteran's widow ends in death or divorce, provided she is otherwise eligible.

Q -- May a married female veteran drawing disability compensation or pension claim her husband as a dependent?

A -- Yes, if the husband is incapable of self-maintenance and permanently incapable of self-support due to physical or mental disability, and is otherwise eligible. The same criteria would apply in event of the female veteran's death.

Q -- I am going to school under the G. I. Bill, and plan to attend summer school. What should I do to have my VA education benefits continue through the summer?

A -- After you enroll for the summer session, notify the school of your continued eligibility for VA education benefits. The school will certify your re-enrollment to the VA, and you will receive your payments effective the date of re-enrollment.

Q -- My daughter draws a VA pension based on her father's death in World War II. If she works during the summer, will her earnings affect herpension?

A -- No. Income earned by a chold will not affect this benefit.

Q -- I'm a VA pensioner who has just moved, and wonder what office should be notified about my change of address?

A -- Your change of address should go to the VA regional office where your records are kept and to the postoffice which serviced your old address.

Joe Dolan

On August 3, the City Council authorized the hiring of water consultant, Dean Kingman, to assist in resolving the problem of our dry water well number one and water supply in general.

On August 10, Mr. Kingman arrived as planned and spent six hours with Water Supervisor Seemer at the well sites. They checked static and dynamic water levels in each well, started and stopped the pumps while watching the results on the wall charts, and reviewed many of the old records involving the rate of flow of each of the two wells during recent years. Using the information gained during his hours of review, Mr. Kingman, with Seemer's assistance, began to develop a maximum rate of flow for each well without drawing air. This is known as developing the well's "safe yield." It is done by turning the gate valve from a fully closed position toward the open position while at the same time watching the results of the water flow on the chart for the particular pump in question. Using this process, Mr. Kingman established a safe yield for well number one at a setting of 250 gallons per minute, and at the same time reducing the pump rate of number two well from 350 gallons per minute to 300 gallons per minute. The end result of this effort was to increase the total production of our two wells from the 350 gallons per minute from well number two alone to 550 gallons per minute from both well number one and well number two.

Seven days have gone by with the arrangement as outlined in the paragraph above. During these seven days we did not purchase any water from Cal-American Water Company. However, our storage remains above elevation 30 in our tanks. This means that the setting of safe yield by Mr. Kingman has been a total success. No air has entered the system, and we have been able to keep up with our sonsumer demand without importing water. In spite of the successful seven days, it is too early to assume that we have the problem licked. However, we are no longer pursuing the thought of deepening either of the two existing wells. We will continue to play a "wait and see" game.

The need for a third well has not been lessened in any way because of our short term success in recovering water from well number one. All effort should continue toward acquiring well number three, and it should continue to be considered a crash program.

Incidentally, through contact at our monthly Underground Utilities Committee meeting, we obtained the free service of the P.G.&E.'s pump testing crew. These men arrived at our well site on Monday, August 14, and spent three hours with our water supervisor testing our wells and determining the efficiency of our pumps. A written report from P.G.&E. if forthcoming. I request that the 600 families in Del Monte Heights please continue Water Conservation measures until we have a new well for our system. Thank you for your cooperation.

Your Social Security

Q: How do I submit a claim for medical insurance benefits under Federal Medicare?

A: If you and your doctor agree that he will apply for payment, it will be made directly to him. This is called "assignment" of benefit. If either you ro the doctor do not want to use the assignment method, you can make the claim with an itemized bill whether or not it has been paid. See your Medicare Handbook for directions on completing the claim form and the address to which it should be sent. If you need assistance, call or visit the Social Secruity Office.

Q: How much Social Security would a man be eligible for if he attains age 65 in 1972, and has paid the maximum tax every year since the start in 1937? How much could his wife receive?

A: The monthly Social Security benefit would be $216.00 for the wage earner. If his wife is 65, she would receive $108.10 per month. If she were age 62, it would be $81.10 per month.

Q: I recently opened a bank account for my one-year-old son. When I did this, the bank required a Social Security number for him. Why was this necessary?

A: The bank is required to report $10 or more of interest earned to the Internal Revenue Service by the person's name and Social Security number.

Bob Wood Reports

Hitchhiking has got to be one of the world's oldest forms of transportation and experts tell us one of the most dangerous for the hitchhiker and the motorist as well. People have been advocating the banning of this practice in California ever since I came to the Legislature and I'm sure before that. But the fact remains that even today there are few laws which control this practice.

Statistics show that despite the almost daily headlines of all types of crime stemming from hitchhiking, this form of nomadic travel continues to flourish. Of course, it is not always the hiker who is the predator. Often he is the victim, especially in the case of yourg girls who take to the road, but it a short ride to the local malt shop or an extended trip.

The latest attempt to cope with the hitchhiking problem was made during this session by Senator Walsh in the Senate. He directed his attention to the traffic hazard created by hikers lining up or sitting, in most cases, on the approach ramps to freeways. He sought to ban their presence at such junctions.

There is, in fact, presently no law which outright bans hitchhiking. There are laws which prohibit a pedestrian from walking on California's freeways or standing on roadways. However, these laws cover only the pavement areas of ramps. When the CHP has time, which is seldom, to give a hitchhiker a ticket, they accpet the tickets and usually take off for distant places. The action is then meaningless.

After hearing the bill, the Assembly amended it to provide that the motorist stopping on an on-ramp to pick up rides would be in violation. In other words, putting the blame on the onus on the driver of the car. There are many Californins, particularly young people, who use this mode of transportion. I'm sure there are times when you and I have seen a friend of ours or the son of a friend of ours coming home lat from football practice or baseball practice or what have ou and we feel a certain obligtion to stop and give him a rid home. Perhaps outright bannig is not the answer but some measure of control must be esablished for the protection of al.

As I See It

BY MEL VERCOE

The Olympic Games program is in trouble again. It is not the first time, and hopefully it won't be serious.

The first Olympic Games on record were simple foot races held in Greece in 776 B.C. The events were expanded to include various other sports such as wrestling and chariot racing, and the games continued for almost 1200 years until with the decline of the ancient Greek civilization they came to an end with an emperor by the name of Theodosius I, who happened to be a Christian who considered the games to be pagin rites. That was in 393 A.D.

1500 years later, in 1896, a Frenchman by the name of Pierre de Coubertin revived the games and adapted them to modern times. They were interruped briefly during World War I and World War 2, and some day will probably be interrupted again by World War .

In the meantime one of the most memorable games was that held in Nazi Germany in 1936. Hitler intended to use the games to demonstrate the superiority of his Aryan race for all the world to see, but was upset no end by a number of American negroes who walked off with most of the medals. Jesse Owens, I believe, won four gold medals.

There are two basic aims behind the Olympic Games. One is to set high standards for individuals to shoot toward, the other is to try to help nations better their relationships with each other. We just can't help but deplore the practice of some groups who think the Olympic Games should be used to air grievances such as racial discrimination. There must surely be enough other equally effective places to air such differences without endangering one of mankind's last hopes for peaceful get-togethers.

Letter to the Editor

Editor: A newcomer to Seaside, I have discovered but two issues of the POST. I was interested in the three aritcles dealing with the Vietnam Veterans Against The War. All of the city's legal might is being thrust against the 'vocal minority' which dares to petition for a parade permit. Bravo!

What is happening about Seaside's vest pocket library tucked in the basement of the ancient grange building? I can see a huge plaza being built so that automobiles can be displayed with pride in a suitable setting. Lovely. But what about the brazen sales of heroin on a well known, busy corner? I think you call it the 'pit.'

What about s struggling free medical clinic which is trying to help cure some of these ills? The POST said that the county appropriated $5 thousand for them. Does the Post know that the city appropriated NOTHING. What about an eight story hotel tower which will block everyone's view of the bay. Do people want to look at our beautiful beach and panorama of the peninsula, or do they prefer to look at hotels?

I think that Seaside needs to hav its consciousness raised and I propose a column which will focus on humanitarian and alternative solutions to problems such as those above.

Interested? If so I would like to hear from you.

Very truly yours,
Donald A. Maher

Editor: Why must some public agencies come up with decisions that conflict with the best interests of the public? They view one aspect and overlook more important considerations.

I believe a harmful decision was made in Marina recently. The Seaside Post News-Sentinel carried an account headed: MARINA TO STILL SELL FIREWORKS. It states:

"Directors of the Marina Fire District have decided not to prohibit sale of fireworks there after all. Last March, the same body voted to ban their sale after July 5....

"Voting....to postpone the ban was Pres. Robert Cropley, Robert Mast, and Art Clark. The sole dissenter was Richard Chase....One of the reasons for postponing the ban was money; Clark pointed out that the Lions Club made $1,400 from its fireworks booths this year."

It was reported elsewhere that, to his credit, Director Chase spoke up and said that it was a very poor way of raising money to jeapordize the community. He is right! He possesses courage and sound judgement.

Yes, funds are needed by civic groups for worthwhile purposes. But why raise them by foolish means, harmful means? Surely the bright lads and lassies who belong to them can figure out better ways.

It is well known that organizations trying to prevent blindness in our nation are all opposed to the indiscriminate sale of firecrackers to our youth - and others. They contend there are no "innocent firecrackers." They recommend, if so desired, that a community celebration on the evening of July 4th be organized where fireworks can be discharged safely. In a safe area by some experienced adult. (Could not refreshments be sold, money raised?)

As it is now firecrackers booths go up a week or two at least in advance of Independence Day, and are around for several days thereafter. Children disturb the communiy shooting off firecrackers at all hours of the day and late into the night. Sometimes they throw them at a passerby or in an open window of a home or car, as "a lark." Caution is not one of the greatest virtures most youth are blessed with.

Over and over and over again throughout our country firecrackers have caused some fires, frightened older folks and others, burned youngsters, and blinded some. This relic of an era that was more reckless and less crowded than we are today must not contineu forever to disturb and hurt many. Merely because some find it an easy way to make money, not the least the manufacturers and dealers! "Having Fun" should never be to endanger other, wise parengs know well.

It is to be hoped that the Directors of the Marina Fire District get in line with the sensible actions of governmental bodies who have graduated to the lessons of life all over the land. It is to be hoped that they will go forward and stop this nuisance forever- and its danger. It is to be hoped that civic groups that sold the stuff will say: "We will find better ways to raise funds."

Sincerely yours,
George Herman

Editor: Credit must be given to the Monterey County Taxpayers' Association for their role as the sole organization to oppose the county jail/public safety building proposed first as "part" of an ambiguous $2,800,000 Measure A last June 6th and then as a $1,000,000 "nest egg" plant acquisition in the proposed 1972/73 budget. Both were defeated, one at the polls and the other by the Board of Supervisors.

Realizing the present jail is in deplorable condition, notwithstanding a $600,000 taxpayer expenditure for repairs 10 years ago, alternatives to a $2,000,000 new building must be explored, a position long exposued by the Monterey County Taxpayers' Association.

Jack Davenport was presented with a new $736,000 jail (called a rehabilitation facility) on Natividad Road near Salinas last September which has never rached even 50 percent of its potential capacity of 280 inmates.

For about 1/3 the cost of a new $2,000,000 multi-story jail on highcost downtwon Salinas property, the Natividad Road facility could be added-to for maximum security purposes.

On the many unused county-owned acres on Natividad Road a self-contained women's section could be built which might lend itself to their participation in work furlough, in-house work programs, educational opportunities and some form of recreation. Such a unit for the relatively small number of year-in and year-out female social offenders may be accomplished for $100,000 or less. For a small additional cost the patrol, records, civil and detective divisions could be housed in such a complex if an updated downtown jail building would not suit such a purpose.

If Jack Davenport insists on having a downtown Sheriff's office, such a building could be constructed as an adjunct to the present jail building for about $17 a square foot. Our present jail building, with basic plumbing, electrical, heating, closed circuit TV surveillance, paint and administrative improvements innovatively and imaginatively applied, could continue to serve for hard-core prisoners and those awaiting their court appearances.

Contrary to reports that the Monterey County Taxpayers' Association was pushing for the jail, as a separate bond issue, to be put on the ballot in November, that organization has called for an examination of the alternatives while admitting that the overwhelming voter turn-down on June 6th was due, in part, with a new jail/public safety building being mixed with $800,000.00 of non-related expenditures.

Attends Institute

Janis M. Bolt, Director - Gateway Child Development Center, is among more than 80 teachers of multi-handicapped minors who are taking part in a special institute at California State University, Fullerton.

The institute, funded by a grant from the Federal government, is directed by Dr. Calvin C. Nelson, chairman of Cal State's behavioral sciences in education department. Part of a demonstration project designed to upgrade services offered by California's 56 development centers for Handicapped Minors (DCHM), the institute will train personnel from the centers in the use of a systems model for instructional planning, implementation and evaluation.

Janis Bold joins colleagues from throughout California, officials from the university, 18 discussion leaders and representatives of the State Department of Education for the week-long conference.

Welcoming the participants will be Dr. Ivan L. Richardson, vice president for administration and community relations. Also on hand will be Allen Coltharp, chief of the State Department of Education's Bureau of Physically Exceptional Children, Dr. Nelson and Gerald Peterson, statewide development center consultant and director of the follow-up phase of the project for the state department of education, Bureau for Exceptional Children.

Registration and headquarters for the institute will be the Hilton Inn in Fullerton, with most of the activities centered around the Development Center for Handicapped Minors located on the Fullerton campus.

The Orange County Department of Education, through its county superintendent Dr. Robert Peterson, is cooperating in the institute. His department operates the Cal State center, serving 40 multi-handicapped students between the ages of 3 and 21 years, and two other centers in Orange and Anaheim.

Participants in the institute will be trained in a systems model called DASIE (Define, Access, Specify, Intervention and Evaluate), designed by Dr. Nelson.

Suggestion Wins Award

A suggestion was adopted from a civilian employee at Fort Ord that earned him $930 and saved the U.S. Government an estimated $45,048 for the first year.

Glenn T. Crump, who works at the Utilities and pPollution Control Division of the Directorate of Facilities and Engineering (DFAE), received a cash award of $930 for his suggestion of putting a control device on the hot water pipes in the post's housing area.

Complaints had been given to DFAE from many families living in certain housing areas of the post of the inadequate hot water. Mr. Crump researched the problem and found a way of crimping the hot water pipes to give more hot water to the occupants.

He suggested restricting the discharge line between tankless heaters and storage tanks to increase the temperature, thus eliminating the cooling of stored hot water.

Prior to the modification of the water system, plans were in progress to install additional water heating equipment. Had Mr. Crump not submitted his suggestion, the U.S. Government would have spent approximately $36,000 in new heating equipment.

Mr. Crump resides with his wife, Vera, in Marina.

Tips On 'Gyps' Offered

What can you do to protect yourself against dishonest repairman?

The California State Automobile Association offers these suggestions:

* Establish in your own community a garage or service outlet you can trust and then stay with that garage.

* When you pull into a service station away from home, one member of the family should stay with your car while it is being checked and serviced. It often helps if that person is out of the car and watching when the hood is opened.

* If a mechanic tells you repair work is needed and you have suspicions about it, take it to the local dealer who handles your make of car or to an AAA contract station and have them check it over.

* Submit complaints to the Director of Consumer Affairs, Department of Automotive Repairs, Sacramento CA 95814.

Lock It--Pocket Key!

In 42 percent of the car thefts in the United States--or two in five --the driver left the keys in the car.

These statistics, based in FBI reports, zoom higher when another standard question is asked: "Was your car locked?"

The usual answer to that one is, "No, I was just going to be out of it for a few minutes..."

The California State Automobile Association, in cooperation with the National Auto Theft Bureau, is trying to get everyone to "Prevent Theft--Lock Your Car."

Bumpers Save Cash

Recently, Allstate Insurance Company of Chicago announced it could grant collision insurance reductions up to 20 percent to 1973 cars meeting rigid standards.

The top discount, 20 percent, Allstate now announces, will be available for American Motor Corporation's 1973 Hornets and Gremlins equipped with an optional rear recoverable bumper system.

Dodge Sets Sales Records

A record June for Dodge sales of 56,000 cars and 23,515 trucks helped the company to its best second quarter and best first six months in history.

The marks were established for both cars and trucks and cars and trucks combined.

Richard D. McLaughlin, Dodge general sales manager, said:

"Car sales of 305,664 units for the first half of the 1972 calendar year were up 10 percent over a year ago and were 110 units over the previous first half high set in 1968.

"Truck sales of 133,179 units were up 64 percent over the previous record of 80,961 sold in 1971."

For the April to June quarter, McLaughlin said Dodge dealers sold a record 162,937 cars, breaking the 1968 mark of 162,865.

The 70,403 trucks sold was the best of any quarter for truck sales in the company's history.

The previous high quarter was from January to March of 1972 when 62,776 trucks were sold.

The previous second quarter high of 44,160 was set last year.

The record June sales accounted for increases of 10 percent for cars and 37 percent for trucks over the same month a year ago when 51,337 cars and 17,125 trucks were sold.

The previous June record was 53,188 set in 1968.

The previous truck mark was in 1971.

Car sales of 25,833 and truck sales of 11,449 for the final 10-day period of June also were all-time records, eclipsing previous records of 25,133 and 8,476, both set in 1971.

Fort Ord Chaplains Participate in Annual Summer Alcohol Study

Ch (LTC) Kenneth E. Garner and Ch (CPT) David M. Bobbey of Fort Ord, were two of 51 Protestant and Catholic clergymen from 14 states who participated in the gourth annual summer school of the Berkeley Center for Alcohol Studies, held August 7-18 at the Pacific School of Religion.

Both Chaplains were presented with certificates at the end of the two-week training couse on alcohol and other frugs by Dr. Herman J. Kregel, the center's director and a nationally-known leader in alcohol education and abuse, who is a former Fort Ord Post Chaplain (1960-1964).

In presenting the award, Dr. Kregel noted that participants had gained insights which separate them from the majority of clergymen who have shown "passionate apathy" toward the plight of "The Thirteenth American"--those of the drinking public who develop serious problems because of alcohol.

Dr. Kregel said that as many as one out of every 13 drinkers --or nine million nationally-- are alcoholics or problem drinkers.

While the clergy represent "a major untapped reservoir" for the prevention of alcohol and other drug problems, he said, studies show they have done little to help the problem drinker and his family.

Clergy participation in the program was made possible by a grant provided by the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Kregel cited two studies conducted by the center which showed that few of the more than 100 seminaries polled offered theological students any courses in alcohol education or abuse.

Yet, he added, 42 percent of those seeking help for their problem truned to their pastors first.

Another survey reported in the Southeast showed that 70 percent of those in Alcoholics Anonymous or in rehabilitation clinics--or their families--found little if any help in their initial contacts with the clergy, Kregel said.

"Alcohol is still the number one problem of our society in its search for comfort through chemicals," he noted. "It is the fourth leading killer in the United States and reduces the lifespan of the problem drinker by 10 to 12 years.

"Every 15 minutes there is an alcoholic murder on our highways," he said. "And I haven't heard of anyone turning in his driver's lincense to protest this senseless slaughter."

"What would you think if the astronauts came back with a virus that would kill 1,600 Americans every week," he asked. "Or if one out of every 13 bus passengers were killed weekly in highway accidents?" Yet, he said, alcohol kills a proportionate number each week.

Kregel said alcohol adversely affects 36-million family members in addition to the nine-million problem drinkers themselves. In economic terms, he added, some $15-billion is lost to the economy every year.

"If a teenager jumped out of a window high on marijuana, the story would be on the front pages of every newspaper in the country," he said. "But little is said if a youth is killed wrapping the family car around a tree high on booze."

Kregel cited three reasons why the clergy has shown "passionate apathy" in the face of this gigantic national public health problem:

One -- They don't want to "get burned again" since Prohibition -- "the great church crusade" -- was repealed.

Two -- Many recoil against memories of the day when the only test of Christian piety involved drinking and /or smoking.

Three -- Extreme polarization has become evident between churchmen who believe that alcohol is the only problem worthy of the church's concern and those who think that alcohol isn't any problem at all.

Kregel indicated that the time is long overdue for the clergy to break their "conspiracy of silence." He paid particular tribute to A.A. for helping the alcoholic who still suffers. But he noted that A.A. is able to reach only a fraction of those desperately needing care.

"There are not enough psychiatrists in the entire United States to give one hour a week to all of the alcoholics in California alone," he said. "Besides, psychiatrists are reported to have one of the poorest records with problem drinkers of any professioln in the County."

"A Boy Scout with love in his heart can do more for the recovering alcoholic," he said, "than the most brilliant psychiatrist who hates the guts of the alcoholic."

Kregel insisted that clergy with the desire to help must abandon any moralistic reaction to the problem. "Even though we may no longer intellectually believe in the simplistic sinful syndrome," he said, "at the gut level we still too often recoil."

He further contended that the stereotype of the alcoholic as a Skid Row bum must be abandoned. "Actually," he said, "less than five percent--and probably not more than three percent--of the alcoholics in the United States fall into this category."

Kregel observed that "one of the biggest probems" in the treatment process involves those, including some A.A. members, who think that there is only one way to meet the problem.

"My own feeling is that I'm willing to go along in an eclectic manner," he said. "I believe that if something is a help to people, let's implement it."

He pointed out that the clergyman often is the only person in the community who can serve as a satalyst, as an agent of change and as a counselor to the suffering alcoholic and his family. He also noted that pastors may be the only ones "who can assume leadership in bringing other leaders of fragmented, competing, jealous agencies together."

"Don't sell us short," he warned. "Forty percent of our population are still in public worship at least once every week in this country....We have access to people that nobody else has."

Bank Buys College Bond

Bank of America headed an underwriting group which recently bought the $4,100,000 bond issue of the San Luis Obispo County Community College District, San Luis Obispo and Monterey Counties.

The County Community College, established in 1963, currently is operating in temporary quarters. The permanent campus, on which construction is underway, will be located on a 126-acre site about six miles west of San Luis Obispo. Proceeds of today's sales will be applied toward the overall $12,000,000 building program scheduled for completion in 1975. Construction funds will include district, state and federal monies.

Current enrollment at the community college is 4,146. San Luis Obispo is also the site of California State Polytechnic University. Estimated population of the community college district of 106,000 compares with 81,500 in 1960.

The Bank of America underwriting group paid a premium of $82 for various coupons. The dollar bid was 100,002. Net interest cost to the district was 4.6257 percent. The bonds were reoffered to investors to yield from 3 percent in 1973 to 4.90 percent in 1987. Bonds maturing 1978-82 were not reoffered.

Other members of the Bank of America syndicate were: Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Incorporated; Goldman, Sachs & Co.; Walston & Co., Inc; Stone & Youngberg; Stephens, Moore & Company; and California Tax-Exempt Bond Funds Incorporated.
